The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-9, 16, 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Gellert (U.S. Patent 4,771,164).

Gellert discloses an injection molding nozzle having an embedded electric heater wire 72 and a thermocouple 92 wrapped around said nozzle in a substantially downwardly spiral direction. The thermocouple and heater wire being separated by material 74 surrounding the wire, said material having good heat conductance. The thermocouple 92 and heater 72 being sandwiched in air and electrical insulating material 74 respectively.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 18-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gellert (U.S. Patent 4,771,164).

While the depth of penetration of the thermocouple is almost that of the heater wire, allowing for the same depth would have been obvious in light of In re Japikse, 86 USPQ 70 where a change in location not affecting the operation of a device is considered within the skill of the ordinary artisan. Winding the thermocouple around the nozzle a plurality of times would have been obvious in light of In re Rose, 105 USPQ 237 and In re Reven 156 USPQ 679 where the size of an element not affecting the operation of a device is considered within the skill of the ordinary artisan. Lastly, the Examiner will assume in claim 18, on line 4, "on" should be --one--.

Applicant's arguments filed 7-2-04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues Gellert does not disclose an electric heater and thermocouple embedded within the nozzle. The Examiner disagrees. As shown in Fig. 1, wire 72 and thermocouple are embedded in the nozzle. See hole 134 which receives thermocouple 92. Applicant further argues Gellert does not disclose a thermocouple wire element longitudinally adjacent the heater wire. The Examiner disagrees. Since the heater wire has a tighter spiral than the thermocouple, the thermocouple is always adjacent the heater as the thermocouple descends longitudinally.

Lastly, Applicant argues claim 16 limits the invention as being separated by only a dielectric. The Examiner disagrees. Claim 16 is read as being open ended where the invention is not limited to a only a dielectric.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within

TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
